

Web Server for MoleculeDB

Implementation:

- Establish communication between the server and client side
- Send query to the database
- Retrieve the query result and encode as a message stream for communication via the socket port.
- Decode the message stream into desired data form.